STRING TEACHERS SYMPOSIUM
TO FEATURE TWO CONCERTS

MISSOULA--

The Atlanta String Quartet and the Symphony of Strings will present free public concerts during the ninth annual String Teachers Symposium which will begin on the University of Montana campus this weekend.

The Atlanta String Quartet concert will be Monday evening at 8:15. The Symphony of Strings concert, under the direction of T.L. Madden, conductor of the Great Falls Symphony, will be Tuesday evening at 8:15.

The symposium is sponsored by the Montana String Teachers Association and the University of Montana School of Fine Arts. Events during the symposium include open discussions, lectures and chamber music sessions.

Participants in the symposium include Richard Shackelford, music supervisor of Helena public schools; Patricia Reynolds, orchestra director of Bozeman public schools; Harold Herbig, orchestra director of Missoula County high schools; Florence Reynolds, UM music professor; Eugene Andrie, UM music professor, and Dushan Vojnovich.
